THE REDRUTH SCHOOL NEWSLETTER

Issue 217 16th June 2017

Duke of Edinburgh

Headteacher, Craig Martin was at Buckingham Palace to receive the presentation of Redruth School being accredited as an official licence holder for the Duke of Edinburgh awards. He met with His Royal Highness Prince Philip and also met with celebrities and television personalities, including Carol Kirkwood from the BBC who promised to mention Redruth more often when presenting the weather!

As a licence holder this means our school can now award all D of E achievements including bronze, silver and gold. Increasing the opportunities for outdoor education and active lives are a key aim for the school over the next few years.

Kresen Kernow

Future Stars students were delighted to have the opportunity to explore the Kresen Kernow site. After hearing about the archaeology of the site and its possible previous uses and occupants, students were able to access the original building and surrounding area which is still under construction.

Mr Carley- Annear said, “It is wonderful to see our students being at the centre of such a fantastic development in Redruth.” Site Manager, Phil Richards also commented, “Redruth students were enthusiastic and keen to re-visit the site in the future to see the progress of Kresen Kernow.”

High Flyer

Christopher Yarde-Dent, former student of Redruth School and Sixth Form, joined 77 Squadron (Redruth) Air Cadets in July 2010 with the dream of pursuing his career as a commercial airline pilot. He has completed training that has furthered his desire to be a pilot, including training such as the QAIC scheme (Qualified Aerospace Instructors Course). He was subsequently awarded the Team Leadership award.

Chris was nominated by the squadron staff for a flight scholarship. This meant he completed twelve hours of flight training and even performed a solo circuit!

It can be said that all of this training and experience has led to his biggest achievement yet... Chris has just applied for a vacancy with Easy Jet to become an airline pilot. His application was successful and he has now commenced the selection process.

From everyone at Redruth School we wish Chris the very best of luck!
